(1:15) MONDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL Washington at New York Giants, 7:25 p.m. ET, ESPN Josh Brown: One ugly game doesn't change what I think of Jay Gruden or Kirk Cousins Question: If the season ended today and the Washington Redskins did not make the playoffs, should general manager Scot McCloughan and coach Jay Gruden be fired? Answer: Of course not. I am very confident in Gruden and McCloughan. They both brought me back in 2010, when I was one of the hottest coaches and most controversial at ESPN. Gruden is a good football coach and fits into the building of Washington. I'm not a big fan of the franchise's previous regime, but Gruden is a talented, intelligent coach who deserves time. McCloughan has a high-quality team. He's a valuable asset to the franchise, which is why I said last week that the Redskins might trade him if Cousins starts to struggle. I don't think either should be fired for this season. Sporting News NFL columnist Brian Bennett reacts to the Redskins making a move for Josh Rosen in the second round of the NFL draft. Take our poll! Question: What about Kirk Cousins? How does he deserve to be the quarterback in Washington after this performance? Answer: Cousins' play has not been up to NFL standards, but that's not because of McCloughan and Gruden. The team has been mismanaged. Cousins' play in the past three seasons has been among the best quarterbacks in the NFL. He has the ability to be an All-Pro quarterback. But the front office has made a number of bad decisions, and Cousins hasn't been helped by that. He's thrown more interceptions than all but one NFL quarterback this season, which is a horrible stat. The Redskins don't 82157476af
